Say Hello To Your New Best Friend

Dardini Designs started the way a lot of meaningful businesses do, with family, hard work, and years of learning something from the inside out. Before the showroom, Mike was already deep in the world of logistics, freight, and sourcing, building relationships and learning how quality materials make their way across the world and into people's homes.

That background is a big part of what makes Dardini what it is today. We do not just look at stone as something pretty to sell. We look at where it comes from, how it was chosen, and whether it is really worth bringing back. As we traveled more and spent more time visiting suppliers and walking through yards, stone became one of the clearest parts of our story.
